11.6 Single Transferrable Vote Procedures

11.6.1 Electors may cast a single ranked ballot. Electors rank their preferred candidates from most preferred to least preferred, and may rank fewer than the maximum number of candidates.

11.6.2 The CRO will calculate the quota of votes needed to win a position for the election according to the Droop formula.

11.6.3 Candidates will be assigned votes according to the following process:

- a) Votes shall be counted as follows:
 - i. On the first round of counting, each option shall receive a first preference vote for each vote indicating it as first preference.
 - ii. Should an option meet the quota of first preference votes after any round, it shall be declared elected. If there are several options meeting the quota the one with the most votes shall be elected. If there is a tie one of those options shall be elected by random draw. Multiple options are never elected simultaneously.
 - iii. When an option is elected by meeting the quota, the votes for that option are discounted (if applicable) and redistributed: All first preference votes for that option shall be replaced by the vote's first preferred option that is not yet elected or eliminated. All second preference votes for that option shall be replaced by the vote's next preferred option that is not yet elected or eliminated, and so on.
 - iv. If no option is elected or further winners are required, then the option with the fewest number of first preference votes shall be eliminated from the question.

Should there be a tie for the fewest number of first preference votes, then among these, the option with the fewest number of second preference votes shall be eliminated. Should a tie persist, the procedure shall continue with third preference votes, etcetera. Should a tie still persist, the option with the fewest number of original first preference votes, shall be eliminated. Should a tie still persist, the procedures shall continue with original second preference votes et cetera. Should a tie still persist, an option shall be eliminated by random draw. Multiple options are never eliminated simultaneously.

- v. When an option is eliminated, all first preference votes for that option shall be replaced by the vote's first preferred option that is not yet elected or eliminated. All second preference votes for that option shall be replaced by the vote's next preferred option that is not yet elected or eliminated, and so on.
- vi. This procedure of electing and eliminating option(s) and redistributing first preference votes shall continue until all winners are elected or the number of options left equals the number of winners (this may occur due to exhausted ballots, and those options shall be declared elected)
